Dear Prime Minister,

I know you have been busy completing Brexit, starting the recovery post-pandemic and the ongoing war. Question time must have been difficult. However, the plight of these children is much worse. You referred me back to the education department. The child is now 25 years old. He won a tribunal for negligence against education, social services, and the council. No internal investigation took place and his placement failed through under finance and wrong diagnosis, as stated in my previous letters.

Hence this letter to say I am still waiting for the correct response. Please read all my previous letters to get a better understanding.

Yours sincerely,

Howard Lamb DC
